

Protocol for Pierre Elliott Trudeau Foundation Community members to join Goodenough College

Goodenough College, Mecklenburgh Square, London WC1N 2AB
www.goodenough.ac.uk

In June 2013, the Trudeau Foundation inaugurated a partnership with Goodenough College of London, the United Kingdom. Goodenough College is London's leading residential college for international postgraduates. It provides accommodation in the heart of Bloomsbury for 700 students from all over the world; 20% of students come with their families. Selection is based not only on applicants' academic prowess but also on their commitment and enthusiasm to contribute to the life of this unique academic community and, later, to their home countries. Goodenough College has enduring ties with Commonwealth countries and Canada in particular: Canadians annually comprise the largest national cohort, with around 10% of the College's membership.

Membership at Goodenough: Long Stays

Under the terms of the partnership, Goodenough College offers automatic membership to Trudeau scholars studying in London, subject to a veto only in the most exceptional circumstances. Goodenough hopes that the scholars take up College membership for one or more years, since this maximizes the benefits of living in Goodenough's academic community. However, where possible, the College will try to accommodate scholars wishing to stay for a shorter period.

To apply for membership at the College, Trudeau scholars must complete the online application form at www.goodenough.ac.uk. Scholars need not provide references and an essay, but should simply indicate that they are Trudeau scholars and attach a copy of their award letter from the Foundation. Please also attach a short biography that the institution will use to present you to its members. For any questions, contact Caroline Persaud, the college registrar, at caroline.persaud@goodenough.ac.uk.

Goodenough College hopes that Trudeau scholars with full membership of the College will share their academic expertise by giving a talk or hosting a seminar during their period of residence. To discuss these opportunities, contact Mark Lewis, the director of development and external relations, at mark.lewis@goodenough.ac.uk.

Short Stays at Goodenough

Less than one year. Goodenough has some student rooms and flats (apartments) available for periods of less than one year. Scholars, mentors, fellows, directors, and members of the Foundation should send their dates to Caroline Persaud, the college registrar, directly at caroline.persaud@goodenough.ac.uk. Their requests will be prioritized.

From 3 days to 3 months. The College offers a number of sabbatical suites and sabbatical flats that are typically used by visiting faculty. For details, contact Anne-Marie Jeanneret, Goodenough's reservations manager, at anne-marie@goodenough.ac.uk.

Hotel accommodation. The Goodenough Club is the College's four-star rated hotel accommodation. It is situated on the College campus and it shares the College's facilities. Members of the Trudeau

Foundation benefit from discounted rates. Simply visit club.goodenough.ac.uk and use the code “TRUDEAU.” For questions, contact Anne-Marie Jeanneret, Goodenough’s reservations manager, at anne-marie@goodenough.ac.uk.

Like those staying at Goodenough for a longer time, members of the Trudeau Foundation community who are only staying at the College or the Club for a short period are warmly welcomed to give a talk or host a seminar during their period of residence. To discuss these opportunities, contact Mark Lewis, the director of development and external relations, at mark.lewis@goodenough.ac.uk.

Access to the Goodenough Community

Goodenough College is pleased to offer honorary membership of the College to all members of the Trudeau Foundation community who stay at the College or the Club. The College will provide members of the community with a College ID and with access to information about College activities, with full rights to attend. Visitors may use College facilities such as libraries, media rooms, and printing resources. They will also be given an orientation briefing on arrival to ensure that they are fully integrated into the Goodenough community.

Access to The Burn

Goodenough College owns The Burn, a residential study centre in the Highlands of Scotland. The College offers Trudeau Foundation community members access to this facility at preferential rates for group events and individual visits. For more information, visit theburn.goodenough.ac.uk. To book space, contact David Turner, the bursar of The Burn, at david.turner@goodenough.ac.uk.
